

CLAIMS1

~~A device for the storage of viscous substances wallpaper paste -adhesives comprising of a container having a base and stand which elevates the device to the required height from ground level.~~

The present invention comprises of having side walls extending upwardly there from where side of walls has a reduction in gradient.

~~The inner side walls of the present invention has a number of reductions in gradient in this way the container of the device may be filled with wallpaper paste-adhesive up to the correct level or where the first reduction in gradient occurs in this way a reservoir is formed by the inner side walls having the reduction in gradients.~~

It is preferred that the device further comprises a stand where by the container of the device rests on the stand which elevates the container to the required height above the ground to provide easier access to the container.

~~The stand of the device has outer side walls which have a reduction in gradient to give the stand of the device the appropriate balance steadying means from ground level.~~

Preferably the top of the stand has upturned edges to retain the container of the device In a substantially stable position.

~~The device of the invention is hollow-base-shell-designed.~~

2

~~A device for the storage of viscous substances as claimed in claim 1 wherein it is preferable that the device is made from a substantially resilient material such as plastic materials or metals but any other suitable material may also be used.~~

CLAIMS3

~~A device for the storage of viscous substances as claimed in claim 1 or claim 2~~ the device of the invention further more comprises of an air tight lid which is to be placed over the opening of the device when not in use in addition the device has carrying handles for ease of carrying when required.

4

~~A device for the storage of viscous substances as claimed in claim 1 or claim 2 or claim 3~~ where in addition the device more preferably still the container of the device may have at least one but preferably a plurality of attachments means there on where by a paste brush or paste roller or other decorating implements such as mixing tool may reasonably attached to the device and removed when required.

5

~~A device for the storage of viscous substances as claimed in any proceeding claim~~ wherein each device has further implements if required optional apparatus-sub frame- weight implements-kg-brakes-wheels Not Shown.

6

~~A device for the storage of viscous substances substantially as described herein with~~ reference to figures 1-10 of the accompanying drawings.
